An architectural line drawing of a modern interior space, possibly a lobby or event area. The drawing shows a long, open-plan space with a high ceiling featuring a grid of beams. On the left, there are large windows. In the center and right, there are service counters or reception desks with people standing behind them. Several people are also walking through the space. A red carpet is laid out on the floor, leading from the foreground towards the center of the room. The overall style is clean and minimalist, using only black lines on a dark background.
